You are absolutely right. No doubt about it. The lobby is best palce to be at the Hyatt. Last year I attended only two functions, as I was in both of them, and had a most marvelous time. The lunches, dinners, after hours group discussions were great. You can trip from table to table in the lounge and pick your topic. My agenda is different from most that attend.

The format this year is not to my liking. Forums and the like are a waste of time. I want to learn something NEW, not hear two/three people argue politely. There is more interaction in the workshop format. There seems to be a conspiracy within a conspiracy; I'm glad I'm not into that....the facts is what I want and no "Special" self-serving intrepretation attached to it.
